LONDON, October 6.

THE following Account, dated the 31st of August, N. S. and writ by the Veldt Marshal Count Munich, being more particular than any hitherto publish'd concerning the Victory gain'd over the Turks near Choczim, we give it a Place in our Paper, in order to set that glorious Atchievement in a better Light.

All the Honour and Thanks be given to the Almighty, for the singular Victory gain'd the 28th of this Month over the Enemies of the Christian Name, by the Russian Arms, to the eternal Glory of your Imperial Majesty.

The Seraskier Wely Bathaw, General in Chief, commanded the Ottoman Army with the Seraskier Islam Girey, Sultan of Biologorod; Jensch Ali Bashaw; Koldtschach Bashaw of Choczim; Mustapha-Aga, Chief of the Janissaries; and several other Sultans Bashaws. The Ottoman Forces consisted of between 40 and 50,000 Turks, with 20,000 Janissaries and 40,000 Tartars, making in all about 90,000 Combatants. All those Troops were not only posted in an advantageous Camp, on the high Road to Choczim, in order to hinder our Approach to that Place, but were likewise troubled with a triple Intrenchment, defended by 60 Pieces of Cannon and Mortars. The Enemies had fortified themselves in a Manner that it appeared almost impossible to drive them out of so advantageous a Post; for besides the Intrenchments, they had Hills on their Right, with a thick Wood through which it was impossible to march; a little River with Marshes and Dikes lay before them; at their Left they had a deep Valley with steep Hills and Defiles, and the Fortress of Choczim behind them: Moreover, their Army lay on a Hill, so that neither our Cannon nor Mortars could reach them; and we were obliged to march above two Versts upon a continual Ascent, before we could come up to them.

As to our Army, it was surrounded during 48 Hours: We had no Wood and but little Forage; the Enemy harrass'd us both Night and Day, as well in the Wings as in the Centre; the Seraskier continually cannonaded us, tho' without any Effect: It is true, indeed, that the Turks and Tartars were repuls'd in every Attack, and that our Hussars, Calmucks and Cossacks kill'd great Numbers of them, and brought back now and then several fine Horses and rich Arms; but still we could not remain any longer in that Situation, because the Seraskier was fortifying himself both Night and Day, and raising Batteries: Wherefore being desirous to take Advantage of the Ardour of the regular Troops to come to Blows with the Enemy, we resolved, after imploring the divine Assistance, to attack the Infidels in their Camp; which was accordingly perform'd the 28th Instant:

As I observed, that it was impossible to come up with the Ottoman Army, on any Side but the Left Wing, I order'd a false Attack to be carried on at the Right: For this Purpose your Imperial Majesty's Guards filed off to that Side very early in the Morning, with three Regiments of Foot, two of Dragoons, a few Picquets and a Detachment of Hussars, Cossacks and Calmucks, with 4 Mortars and several Pieces of Cannon; as soon as these Troops arrived within Cannon Shot of the Enemy's Batteries, they began to throw Bombs, while all the Army, which was then drawn up under Arms, made a Shew as if it was following in order to attack the Enemy's Intrenchment on that Side: This Stratagem had the desired Effect, for the Infidels immediately ran thither with the greatest Part of their Forces, began to strengthen afresh their Works, and raised two new Batteries on a Hill over against us.

In the mean time the Army wheel'd suddenly to the Right and call'd in the Guards, with the other Troops and Artillery sent towards the Right Wing of the Infidels, who perceiving our Design, likewise wheel'd about to their Left; but we marched so briskly, laid our Bridges with so much Diligence, and play'd our Artillery so well, that about two o'Clock in the Afternoon Lieutenant-General Charles Biron had happily pass'd the Defiles, after making a great Slaughter of the Infidels, that oppos'd him; your Imperial Majesty's Guards followed the Right Wing under the Command of Lieutenant-General Gustavus Biron, as did also the main Body headed by General Romanzow, and the Left Wing commanded by Lieutenant-General Baron de Lowendahl.

During the March the Don Cossacks, who were in the Rear of the Left Wing, and the Hussars posted on one of the Flanks of the Right, were briskly attack'd by the Infidels, who also fell with great Fury on our Centre; so that we were in some Measure surrounded by the Enemy; However, this did not hinder the Right Wing from continuing its March up the Hill with with your Imperial Majeſty's Guards and two Brigades of Artillery Men, and when the Horſes could no longer draw up the Cannon, the Foot Soldiers perform'd it chearfully. The Enemies who were on the Top of the Hill made a furious Fire from their Cannon; but ours being ſuperior diſmounted their Batteries.

Towards 5 in the Afternoon, about 12,000 Janiſſaries made a furious Charge upou us, and pierced as far as the Chevaux de Friſe; but having your Imperial Majeſty's Guards, and the choiceſt of the Foot to deal with, they could not ſuſtain the ſmart Fire made upon them; ſo that after we had kill'd the greateſt Part of thoſe that approached neareſt, the reſt ſhew'd us a lighter Pair of Heels in retreating than in coming on. Soon after we perceived that the Infidels were breaking up their Camp,, ſetting Fire to it, and beginning to retire towards Choczim. At that very Inſtant we might eaſily have made ourſelves Maſters of the whole Turkiſh Camp; but being obliged to ſecure the Baggage and Magazines from the Tartars and Turkiſh Horſe, who ſtill ſurrounded us, we were forced to halt, in order to ſtop the Ardour of the Troops; ſo that it was 7 o'Clock before we arriv'd to the Top of the Hill and in the Enemy's Camp. There we found 19 Pieces of Braſs Cannon, 4 Mortars, a few Standards, a prodigious Quantity of Bombs, Carcaſſes, Cannon Balls and Gabions, 1000 of which laſt Article we had great Occaſion for.

The Almighty has ſo viſibly aſſiſted us, that notwithſtanding the Enemy's continual Fire, we have had but few Men killed and wounded. The Soldiers paſſed the Night in Rejoycings, and as the Army is in a very good Condition, this Victory makes us hope for further Succeſſes.

I writ two Days ago, but as the Courier could not depart until we were arrived on the Nieſter, I have the Honour to add to this Account, that by the Favour of the Almighty, the magnificent Fortreſs of Choczim was delivered up to us Yeſterday, without any Bloodſhed, with 200 Pieces of Cannon and Mortars, the Kaltſchah, Baſhaw of three Tails, having ſurrender'd Priſoner of War with his Garriſon. In this I cannot ſufficiently admire the Ways of Providence: A Door for a Peace is now opened, and I hope to make another Enterprize in Moldavia.

This happy Event gives Room for the following Remarks.

1. The Enemy always boaſted that they would venture a Battle with us, in order to try the Iſſue of it: This they have experienced to their Shame and Loſs.

2. We thought that the Janiſſaries always penetrated wherever they attack'd; but it did not happen ſo at this Time: Our Chevaux de Friſe, our Pikes and ſmart Fire, ſtopp'd them, and put it abſolutely out of their Power to engage us with their Sabres.

3. The Infidels don't think themſelves ſafe in any Fortreſs; for Choczim is ſo ſtrong and there are ſo many Mines all round it, that a Garriſon of 2000 Men might have held out a Fortnight, eſpecially with ſo numerous a Train of Artillery as was in that Place.

A Character of the METHODISTS.

SEE! how thoſe holy, ſelf-abaſing ſouls,
Whom the Bleſt Spirit with his influence rules,
See! with what watchful induſtry and care
They labour in ſalvation's great affair:
Their bodies with what abſtinence they tame,
To quench Concupiſcence's raging flame;
In their juſt bounds the paſſions to reſtrain,
And give to Reaſon's hand to guide the Rein;
Their ſouls to ev'ry duty to prepare,
And chiefly, on which all depends, for pray'r.
Pray'r the ſweet exerciſe of heav'nly Minds,
Ever at heav'n's high throne acceptance finds;
To the light regions of eternal day,
On the pure flame of love it wings it's way.
Pray'r (how important ſhould we pray'r eſteem!)
Seeks our re-union to our good ſupreme;
With ſweet compoſure aims at laſting reſt,
And in it's longing to be bleſt, is bleſt.
The deeper is the ſoul's devout deſire,
And loftier ſoars, the † euchariſtic fire;
The praying breaſt, when holy tranſports raiſe,
Burns, brightens, triumphs, and exults with praiſe,
Contemplating it's ſov'reign bliſs above,
Burſts forth in rev'rence, and adoring love:
Enraptur'd (oh exalted theme!) to ſing ----
The praiſes of the world's eternal king:
With angels and arch-angels to rejoice,
And with all heav'n to join the hymning voice.

† Thankſgiving.
